Subject Humans Do Not Learn

I must be dumb as a post Experiences have taught me sunlight, water, and nutrients (food) are needed for life After reading what I present and once young, I thought I could handle anything As I got older, I learned the world is complicated and can be the pits Having learned things like "A nation divided against itself can not stand", I find it sad humans are stupid Learned experiences are ignored, and solutions for confusing messes escape me I am an intelligent, college educated, experienced person, and I do not understand all that is going-on, and, if you believe you understand confusing mess that is created, you are a fool I do not accept all forms of information and B S put-out by the media, those not worrying about their next dollar, confusing legalese, politicians, and Fourth Branch of Government regulators At 73 plus years of age, having worked with some inexperienced SOBs, and ignoring those who run things (like experienced foremen on ranches, experienced fallers and loggers, and those who have learned), I see things going to hell After many years of giving factual truths, having lived a life full of challenges, finding all of us are guilty of some law somewhere and in some way, and learning public agencies do not talk to each other about legitimate problems, I have found it sad those who are experienced in the real world are ignored With some doubts regarding rural and working folks, I expect Trump to straighten-out some things

- Good health is at the top of my list
- Majority of voting minority run this country and world
- I believe those who fought the revolutionary war with England were rural, working folks, and those who learn about the realities of life
- Real life revolves around one question "Where do you turn when handling life's issues?"

With limited time, the following provides examples of humans being stupid

- 1 Some say marijuana helps I have been in many marijuana gardens, not taken bribes, and have had a friend shot and killed in a garden
- 2 Knowing what causes uncontrollable fire, knowing what makes a tree grow, and as an experienced field (and I emphasize field), I have been ignored by landowner groups like California's Registered Professional Foresters
- 3 With rural and working folks paying majority of taxes and getting the short end of the stick, I find life is not fair and balanced for all folks

Haphazard fire does not do the job right, and properly done timber harvesting and ranching is a good thing As one who sees species and humans in for a world of hurt, finding no one arguing, or, showing acceptance of what experienced old folks have learned, and as already mentioned as a member of voting minority, I find ignoring real world truths is for the birds

In my remaining time, I will wait for a reply to what I have presented
