Subject: Humans Do Not Learn

As a experienced field forester (an I emphasize field), as a hunter and fisherman, as a rural person, as an old person experienced in the real world, as a college educated person, as person who has given input learned along the way, as person who has seen lack of real world realty from media, preservationists, those with money, confusing legalese, politicians, Fourth Branch of Government (regulators), and unnamed others who control species and human lives, and as a person who has learned he is ignored, getting old, knowing he is no dummy, and being experienced is the pits.

Being forcibly retired, I have not seen humans accept the following real world truths:

- Good health is everything.
- Everything survives and grows because of sunlight, water, and nutrients (food).

With some folks showing a need for marijuana and as someone who has been in marijuana gardens and had a friend killed in a marijuana garden, I see marijuana being mishandled.

I present in writing other things I have learned that even Trump will find interesting. At times I am not given much attention, and I am blunt with truths which divide humans. I see a lot of hurt coming, and this often puts me in the voting minority. What I have learned will go to the grave with me, and many species and humans will be sorry.

Subject: Humans Do Not Learn

Being college educated and experienced in the real world (which can hurt), you need to learn what I learned hunting and fishing and as an old person. As a young person, you think can handle anything, and you do not need old experienced people anymore. Humans will be sorry .

Number one on my list is good health.

With two disabled family members, life can be mean.

Being in a rural county where the rural vote means little to the more populated areas (especially in California) is the pits.

Ignoring what I know about vegetation and species needing sunlight, water, and food is not going to end well.

Hi-tech used in the right way is a wonderful thing, but wrongly used has old and young folks not understanding what is happening.

Having fought uncontrolled fires, I know what causes uncontrolled fire, and burning everything up is happening

With timbered areas being taken over by preservationists, protectionists, and those who call themselves environmentalists, I see working folks and minority voters who do not take the time to vote losing.

Those who grow trees and cattle, eliminating open-space, selling to sub-dividers, and getting the hell out of Dodge is a good idea to especially small landowners in California.

With some folks needing marijuana and as someone who has been in marijuana gardens and had a friend killed in a marijuana garden, I see marijuana being mishandled.

I do not believe anything anymore unless it is proven to my satisfaction. I see all sides of the fence (media, preservationists, those with money, confusing legalese, politicians, Fourth Branch of Government (regulators), and unnamed others who help control humans) stupid. Having been on many juries, served on many public boards and committees, given input until I saw it not doing any good and a waste of time, and seen misapplication of many laws, I have learned what humans put in-place does not fit in the real world.

Being old and at times direct, I am ignored and often considered someone to not give much attention. Often this puts me in the voting minority. My books are coming true, and I see a lot of hurt coming.
