DISCUSSION:

Yana Valachovic, Director of Humboldt County's UC Cooperative Extension (UCCE) office, also serves as the UCCE Forest Advisor and has been studying the North Bay Fires (2017, Sonoma County), the Carr Fire (2018, Shasta County) and Camp Fire (2018, Butte County) with the intent to learn how to help build community wildfire resiliency. She has collected information about key factors that are contributing to the high rates of home losses from these events. She has recommended actions that can help with fire resiliency at local and regional levels.

There are multiple legislative efforts in development to address some of these challenges. AB 1516 (Friedman) seeks to address greater refinement of defensible space code. AB 38 (Wood) seeks to provide a low-interest loan program to help homeowners retrofit their homes to meet new fire construction guidance. SB 462 (Stern) seeks to help in workforce development and community fire education. These bills can be supported through the county's legislative platform titled "Emergency and disaster preparedness assistance."
